

Robinson News 2024

We've been in two minds as to whether to write this at all, as there is no "big" news and little has changed from last year. We both continue to combine work and travel, for business and pleasure, and as a consequence of the frequent travel (nearly a third of the year away!), time at home seems even busier than ever before. We are lucky that our work can be done from pretty much anywhere, so even if house chores pile up while we are away, we're keeping up with the work and managing to run both companies (albeit not at a very profitable level ;-).

The boys are living their own lives, and although they both live only 7 miles away in Vauxhall, we don't get to see them that often, as they too have very busy lives. Tim continues to work in finance as an audit consultant to the public sector. Harry works for the Department for Business and Trade, helping to seek inward investment in the UK. His boss changed with the new government but his job pretty much remained the same and is still rather interesting. They both are working hard as they adjust to ever-rising bills on top of their mortgages and student loans while salaries don't quite keep up, but they do manage to have some fun too!

And now onto our favourite subject - travel! An early highlight was a month-long adventure exploring Cambodia and Vietnam. What a trip! So many different elements that it would take a while to go through them all. But, if you want to read more about it, check our blog...

Shortly after, thanks to the hospitality of our dear friends the Johnsons, all four of us gathered in California to attend the wedding of their son Kyle, who we have known since he was a toddler. Not only did we get to catch up with our friends and attend a great wedding, but we also got to spend quality time together as a family. Now that the boys no longer live with us, family holidays with them are less and less frequent, and we treasure our time together.

We did however manage to spend more time than usual with our own parents this summer. Alisa's mum stayed with us (or rather we stayed with her) in the beach cottage in Croatia for a whole month and we had a wonderful week in Madeira with Andy's parents. All three of them are in pretty good shape for their age.

Fingers crossed, we too are in good health (albeit older, aching more and in some cases balder!). Here's to a healthy and more peaceful 2025!

*With best wishes for a Merry Christmas, and Happy New Year
Andy, Alisa, Tim & Harry*
